Currently, African nations are being encouraged to import the Farmer Field School extension Mozambique, a former Portuguese colony, became independent in 1975 but was wracked by civil war in the 1980s. It was unable to establish its public extension service until 1987. The authors analyze the growth and evolution of extension from 1987 to 2004, as provided by public, private, and NGO sources in Mozambique. This work highlights the Ministry of Agriculture's drive to develop and test both local and imported extension models and share its experience with other African countries.

Community-based adaptation (CBA) to climate change is based on local priorities, needs, knowledge and capacities. Early CBA initiatives were generally implemented by non-government organisations (NGOs), and operated primarily at the local level.

Where To Download

Many used 'bottom-up' participatory processes to identify the climate change problem and appropriate responses. Small

Where To Download

Localised stand-alone initiatives are insufficient to address the scale of challenges climate change will bring, however. The causes of vulnerability - such as market or service access, or good governance - also often operate beyond the project level. Larger organisations and national governments have therefore started to implement broader CBA programmes, which provide opportunities to scale up responses and integrate CBA into higher levels of policy and planning.

Where To Download

Where To Download

This book shows that it is possible for CBA to remain centred on local priorities, but not necessarily limited to work

the local level.

Some chapters
address the issue of mainstreaming
CBA into government policy and planning
processes or

effective
mainstreaming.
