Esoteric Buddhism is unique in presenting through visual images, the most abstract of concepts, which then acquire an intuitive simplicity, graspable by all. Thus there exists in Buddhism the concept of a rainbow body. The 'rainbow body' is the penultimate transitional state of meditation in which matter begins to be transformed into pure light. It is said to be the highest state attainable in the realm of 'samsara' before the 'clear light' of Nirvana.

THE MEANING OF COLORS IN TIBETAN BUDDHISM

Red symbolizes blood, fire and the life force. It's associated with the notion of subjugation, but by meditating on the color, Buddhists believe the delusion of attachment can be transformed into the wisdom of discernment. The highest state of all is to attain "rainbow body," when mere matter is transformed into pure light.

Also riddled with duality, fire can represent warmth and comfort, but can also be a destructive force. Red is associated with the Buddha Amitabha. Throughout Tibetan culture, red is a marker of sacred areas, and a true mark of a Buddhist sacred area are the simplistic, tall gates at the entrances. We also see this colour on the garments on the monks.

The Padhran religion was a faith practiced in the Hordelands and by almost all of those living in the hidden realm of Ra-Khati. Following the teachings of the Padhra, believers sought to achieve enlightenment and break a cycle of reincarnation by following a code of virtuous behavior. They knew the Padhra as "the Great Teacher" or as the "Enlightened One". As written in the religious books of ...

Looks at some household hazards such as matches, plastic bags, electrical appliances, sharp objects, and suggest ways to make home a safe place. Suggested level: junior.

Look Out by Water is a no-nonsense book with a strong safety message for young children about how they should avoid potentially dangerous situations near water. The narrative throughout is in simple straightforward language, which is undramatic and reassuring whilst stressing the dangers that seemingly familiar situations can hold for children. A mixture of running narrative and speech bubbles has been specially developed in association with the National Centre for Language and Literacy (Reading Reading Centre) to draw in both confident and less able readers. Specially commissioned photographs are combined with child-centred artwork to support the text and re-iterate the safety message.

A no-nonsense book with a strong safety message for young children about how they should avoid potentially dangerous situations. The narrative throughout is in simple straightforward language, which is undramatic and reassuring whilst stressing dangers.

'Look out on the road' is the perfect introduction to road safety for very young children. It features many aspects of road safety including signs and signals, different types of roads and street environments as well as the safest way to approach traffic.

Francis V. Tiso, a noted authority on the rainbow body, explores this manifestation of spiritual realization in a wide-ranging and deeply informed study of the transformation of the material body into a body of light. Seeking evidence on the boundary between physical science and deep spirituality that might elucidate the resurrection of Jesus, he investigates the case of Khenpo A Chö, a Buddhist monk who died in eastern Tibet in 1999. Rainbow Body and Resurrection chronicles the dissolution of Khenpo's material body within a week of his death, including eye-witness interviews. Tiso describes the spiritual practices that give rise to the rainbow body and traces their history deep into the encounter of religions in medieval Central Asia. His erudite exploration of the Tibetan phenomenon raises the fascinating question of whether there is a connection between the rainbow body and the dying and rising of Jesus. Drawing on a wealth of recent research, Tiso expands his discussion to include the contemplative geography out of which Dzogchen arose some time in the eighth century along the great Silk Road across Central Asia. The result is an illuminating consideration of previously unimagined relationships between spiritual practices and beliefs in Central Asia.

Learn the Truth & See What You've Never Been Told. Did His enshrouded corpse resume breathing in the tomb and acquire magical qualities that allowed it to function in a spiritual capacity outside the tomb? Or, did His entombed corpse dematerialize into formless spirit, then reassemble with human qualities so as to make contact with the material world outside the tomb? The former is non-debatable Christian Resurrection Doctrine, supported by faith. The latter is truth grounded in fact. The fact is, Tibetan Buddhist bodies have been "spiritualizing" since before the Christian era. The phenomenon is known as Rainbow Body. Doctrine is theory that is immune to fact. Supported by zombie adherents who fear the wrath of a punitive God if the sacrosanct is challenged, Christian leaders are effectively relieved of obligation to search beyond traditional doctrine for truth. Their act of neglect is a serious breach of the trust given them by people who look to them for spiritual advice.

Why do smokers claim that the first cigarette of the day is the best? What is the biological basis behind some heavy drinkers' belief that the "hair-of-the-dog" method alleviates the effects of a hangover? Why does marijuana seem to affect one's problem-solving capacity? Intoxicating Minds is, in the author's words, "a grand excavation of drug myth." Neither extolling nor condemning drug use, it is a story of scientific and artistic achievement, war and greed, empires and religions, and lessons for the future. Ciaran Regan looks at each class of drugs, describing the historical evolution of their use, explaining how they work within the brain's neurophysiology, and outlining the basic pharmacology of those substances. From a consideration of the effect of stimulants, such as caffeine and nicotine, and the reasons and consequences of their sudden popularity in the seventeenth century, the book moves to a discussion of more modern stimulants, such as cocaine and ecstasy. In addition, Regan explains how we process memory, the nature of thought disorders, and therapies for treating depression and schizophrenia. Regan then considers psychedelic drugs and their perceived mystical properties and traces the history of placebos to ancient civilizations. Finally, Intoxicating Minds considers the physical consequences of our co-evolution with drugs -- how they have altered our very being -- and offers a glimpse of the brave new world of drug therapies.
